

I shall and will support the retention of the Morse code requirement for operation below 30Mhz.

Morse code is the backbone of amateur radio and is still a viable and usable means for amateurs to communicate.

If someone cannot or will not learn the requirement for Morse, there are other services available. CB, FRS, MURS and GMRS. No requirements necessary, except a fee for GMRS.

Retain the Morse code requirement in the U.S. amateur radio service.
